

DIRECTOR OF STUDIES

ANDREW REEVE

WINCHESTER COLLEGE

Andrew joined Winchester this term after leading a small, combined prep and senior school.

Prior to this he was Deputy Head Academic at Gordon's School, a day and boarding school in Surrey, for six years.

He has previously held positions as Head of Sixth Form, Head of Year and Head of Department at independent schools in the north of England.

He studied Economics and Economic History at York University and has two master's degrees, from the Universities of Exeter and Oxford.

As the Director of Studies, Andrew oversees the academic aspects of school life, ensuring that the pupils are making good progress in their subjects and supporting them in the subject choices they make throughout their time at Winchester.

Outside of lessons, Andrew is involved in the College's community service programme and supports a group of pupils who have established a conservation project to restore the habitat on Elizabeth Meads.
